

EMHS Aboriginal Mental Health Research Scholarship

Applications close: 21 February 2022

The East Metropolitan Health Service (EMHS) is offering a 'top up' scholarship to support an Aboriginal Master of Research or PhD candidate who is conducting research into Aboriginal mental health.

For a successful PhD applicant, the scholarship will be up to $60,000 (tax exempt) over three years full-time, with a maximum payable rate of $20,000 per annum.

For a successful Master of Research applicant, the scholarship will be up to $15,000 per annum for two years ($30,000)

- Applicants must be enrolled in the first year of, or be applying to, a full-time PhD program or in a Master of Research course at a WA University.
- Applicants must identify as Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander.
- The research project must relate to the provision of mental health services to Aboriginal people in a hospital or community setting, preferably within EMHS, and be able to commence in 2022.

Selection will be based on academic excellence and alignment with EMHS objectives and identified areas of clinical need relating to Aboriginal mental health.

How to Apply

- Complete an Application Form including a signature from the head of school/discipline of your enrolling university.
- Provide your Resume or Curriculum Vitae, including academic transcripts and the names of 2 academic referees.

For further information about EMHS, scholarship eligibility and how to apply, please see the EMHS website: www.emhs.health.wa.gov.au/research or contact: Mark Woodman on (08) 9224 3189 or at Mark.Woodman@health.wa.gov.au

Eligibility: Enrolled in, or applying for admission to, full-time candidature for the degree of PhD or Master of Research at a WA University

Value: Up to $20,000 per annum for up to 3 years

Opening date: 15 December 2021

Closing date: 21 February 2022